Australia Awards Short Course

“Youth Participation in Social Justice Issues”

Are you working in the Social Justice sector and passionate about youth participation and engagement in Social Justice issues? If you are keen to engage and empower youth to understand injustices in their environment and take action to respond to them, apply for the Australia Awards Short Course on Youth Participation in Social Justice Issues.

The course aims to empower youth to influence social justice matters in a pluralistic society. The course will bring participants to meet with Australian Government agencies, INGO/CSOs, youth organisations working on social justice issues, individual young activists, young politicians and other leading experts in the sector. The participants will also meet with the alumni of previous Australia Awards Short Courses: Democratic resilience – digital and media literacy; and Democratic resilience: youth participation in Indonesia’s democracy to connect with the alumni groups and exchange ideas.

The course is designed for up to 25 participants with experience in social justice, CSOs, government, media, youth activism, student movement or other related fields from government agencies, CSOs, faith-based organisations, community groups/hubs, media, digital platforms/online communities, social enterprises, social media influencers, university students and political parties.

To apply for this course, you must be:

- Staff up to Echelon II (government) or specialists/managers/directors (non-government) with a minimum of five years of relevant experience in social justice, CSOs, government, media, youth activism, student movement or other related fields. We also encourage staff of sub-national governments to participate. Applications are also welcome from political parties.
- From targeted agencies and professions:
 - Relevant Indonesian Government Ministries (Ministry of Law and Human Rights, Ministry of Women Empowerment and Child Protection, National Commission on Human Rights, Ministry of Youth and Sports, National Commission on Violence against Women, Ministry of Social Affairs, KSP, Bappenas, etc.)
 - Sub-national Governments
 - Relevant CSOs
 - Faith-based organisations
 - Community groups/hubs
 - Media
 - Digital platforms and online communities and companies
 - Social enterprises
 - Social media influencers
 - University students involved in social and political movements
 - Political parties

General criteria for the Short Course applicants:

- Be of Indonesian nationality and hold an ID card (KTP)
- Be endorsed by your current manager/supervisor
- Be committed to preparing and implementing an Award Project, a small group development project as part of the course
- Have professional working proficiency in English. The course will be delivered in English.
